Become an Immigrant Welcoming Congregation

The Immigrant Welcoming Congregations of CRLN is an interfaith coalition of religious leaders, congregations and other faith-based groups, called by our faith to respond actively and publicly to the journey of immigrants. We witness the violation of rights under our current immigration policies particularly: the separation of families due to unjust deportations and the exploitation of immigrant workers. We are deeply grieved by violence done to families through immigration raids and unwarranted detentions. We cannot in good conscience ignore this perpetuation of suffering and injustice.

As people of faith, stand together as one united voice for justice and to be communities that welcome immigrants. Therefore, we will explore what it means to be an Immigrant Welcoming Congregation through prayer, reflection, education, relationship building and action.

The journey toward becoming an Immigrant Welcoming Congregation involves four steps:

1. Exploring our Faith and Values
Start with your faith or values. Have an opening session with a core group from your congregation/faith community to learn about what your faith and values say about welcoming immigrants.

Goals:
1. Learn how your faith tradition, ethics or value system approaches immigration.
2. Anticipate and prepare for the hard questions/concerns you might encounter and research the answers.

Examples of what it looks like:
- Seek out the texts from your faith including through scripture, the interpretation of your scriptures, other holy writings and/or ethical codes about immigration (e.g. from Catholic Social Teaching).

- Have a discussion with your congregation about what these texts call you to do.
- Host a presentation by an organizer or religious leader on the topic of immigration and faith - that might include a directly affected individual from your community
- Host conversations with other Immigrant Welcoming Congregations
- Host an interactive workshop on immigration and faith

2. Education and Relationships for Transformation:

Host an education event for a larger group in your congregation. Education events should include testimonies from individuals and families that are directly affected in order to begin building relationships and in order for people to see the human face of the issue.

Goals:

1. Learn the terminology and the reality of the different immigrant communities. Begin to understand differences between the many different pathways migrants use for arriving to and remaining in the United States.
2. Create a personal connection between your congregation/community and an immigrant youth or family.
3. Expand the reach of your immigration ministry and work.

Examples of what it looks like:

- Movie night followed by testimony
- A shared meal and discussion with families affected by the current immigration system (e.g., a Dreamer/DACA recipient)
- A panel discussion with immigration leaders, including youth or families

3. Prayerful Action

Through prayer and religious practice, find ways to be present with immigrant neighbors.

Goals:

1. Create a powerful experience for your core leaders, to help connect their spiritual lives with their work on immigration.
2. Connect immigration to prayer and action.
3. Find ways to pray for and with affected community members - including through multi-lingual prayer, song and ritual
Examples of what it looks like:

- Include prayers for immigrants in your community’s regular weekly prayer.
- Partner with other organizations that support immigrants and begin to discern what material support, mentoring, or other resources your congregation might provide.
- Host a letter writing or post card signing session after your weekly service. Write your state or federal representative in support of progressive immigration laws and policies.
- Participate in one of the Interfaith Coalition for Detained Immigrants’s (CDI) programs:
  - Court Watch to witness and document courtroom proceedings.
  - Friday vigil (virtual or in person, when possible) at Broadview Detention Center, the last stop before immigrants are deported.
  - Pastoral Visitation of detained youth or sharing electronic resources for youth (book readings, short films).
  - Letter writing to adult detained immigrants.
  - See ICDI Chicago for more ideas.
- Host an interfaith prayer gathering.

4. Affirming Our Commitment:

As a way to bless or affirm your group’s commitment to doing this work as an Immigrant Welcoming Congregation, we recommend a blessing or ritual that engages the entire congregation/community.

Goals:

1. Have the leadership of the congregation/community speak to the entire group to show that immigration is woven into the shared faith life of the congregation/community.
2. Create a moment when the congregation/community makes a sacred commitment to continue to welcome, include and embrace immigrants.
3. Bless the congregation's/community’s ongoing commitment or ministry on this issue.

Examples of what it looks like:

- This will differ according to each faith tradition or community. Many will include a prayer, anointing, and/or covenant.
- Invite one or two people from your group to join the CRLN/IWC Organizing Committee and to attend regular meetings to unite with other people of faith working on immigration issues.

- When a congregation/community makes an official commitment to be an IWC, they are invited to make a public declaration during an interfaith gathering and to sign a Welcoming Covenant.

Living out our Commitment to be an Immigrant Welcoming Congregation

You are invited to live out this commitment by:

1. Response - Direct Service
   Deportation leads to broken families, children without parents, and families without breadwinners. As people of faith, we have a duty to respond.

   Goals:
   1. Learn more about the rights of immigrants and what faith-based groups can do to support them.
   2. Find concrete ways to serve the needs of immigrant families.

   Examples of what it looks like:
   - Support any of the many organizations or projects that support immigrants. For example, the IWC’s Sanctuary Working Group which strives to support immigrants and asylum seekers in need of temporary support.
   - Explore how you can connect immigrant families to the programs and services in your community or neighborhood that might benefit them.
   - Host a workshop to educate others about the basic rights of immigrants (legal rights, worker rights, parental rights), about what services are currently available, and brainstorm services (legal, food, transportation, emotional) that you could provide.
   - If there is a raid or crisis within the immigrant community, your congregation may be called upon to participate in an emergency prayer vigil or press conference.

2. Public Action
   As people of faith, we cannot remain silent to the injustice around us, and we must use our collective voice to actively take a public, moral stand for immigrant justice and human rights.
Goals: The congregation/group participates in a public action that demonstrates its solidarity with immigrant communities who take great risks to participate in the public sphere.

Examples of what it looks like:
- Prayer vigil lifting up immigrant stories
- Prayer vigil at a local immigration detention facility, or at an elected official's office
- Meeting with a congressperson or public official about upcoming legislation
- Participation in a public rally, demonstration, town hall meeting, or candidates' forum
- Running a voter education campaign or call-in campaign

3. Continued Education and Relationships for Transformation
We know that learning is a continuous process and that living out our faith and values is never complete.

Goals:
1. Continue to explore how your faith tradition or community approaches immigration
2. Continue to learn about the current immigration issues and realities that immigrants face
3. Continue to build relationships of love and hospitality with our immigrant neighbors
4. Identify and give witness to the connections between racial inequities and immigration policies

Examples of what it looks like:
- Host a movie night, panel discussion, educational forum, book group, scripture study
- Share a meal with families affected by current immigration system
- Participate in a "service-learning day" offsite, perhaps doing a small work project that supports an immigrant organization or community group. These opportunities are numerous.
- Participate in a longer immersion educational experience either along the US/Mexico Border or here in the Chicago area. Participate in an event of IL SOA Watch
